

COOLIDGE MAY BE UNABLE TO GIVE ADDRESS

Chief Executive May Not Come Here If Congress Is In Session.

Apparently there is some doubt whether President Coolidge will be able to make the address at the memorial services here on May 30, judging from a press dispatch from the Washington bureau of a Philadelphia morning paper.

The article appearing under a Washington date line says:

"President Coolidge has about definitely decided to go to Gettysburg to deliver the Memorial Day address."

"Only the possibility of the congressional session lasting over Memorial Day will deter the president from visiting the old battlefield and even should that contingency arise, he will make every effort to make the trip."

Members of the general committee of the Sons of Union Veterans, camp 112, who are in charge of arrangements for the visit of the president said this morning that they had not received any word from President Coolidge or his secretary and that plans were going forward under the assumption that the president had definitely decided to come here.

Arrangements have been made with a decorating firm of York to place flags and replicas of the president's shield along the streets from the railroad station to the National cemetery and on each of the other two streets radiating from Centre Square, the committee announced today. The total cost of this work will approximate $400, the funds being supplied by local business men.

In addition to these decorations the local committee has asked all residents of the town to decorate their buildings with flags and bunting.

C. I. SNYDER INJURED AS HOIST FALLS

Treasurer Of G. O. P. County Committee Struck By Derrick At Bank.

Clarence I. Snyder, who resides along the Bonneauville road, near here, was painfully injured Tuesday afternoon when a swinging derrick he was operating on the roof of the Gettysburg National bank building, York street, slipped its moorings and upset.

He suffered dislocations of the right hip and left thumb, a fracture of the nose, lacerations about the head and a deep cut between the thumb and first finger on the right hand. At the Warner hospital today, where the injured man was taken, his condition was reported to be good.

The derrick, used to move heavy stones for the construction work in progress at the bank, was being operated by Mr. Snyder when a log of the apparatus slipped its moorings, and the machine began to fall.

Leaving his place at the window in an effort to prevent it from toppling over, Mr. Snyder was caught by the heavy machine.

Follow workmen rushed to his assistance and a call for the Gettysburg ambulance was put in. Considerable difficulty was experienced in lowering the injured man from the roof.

When efforts to lower him through the small trapdoor in the roof proved futile, part of the roof was removed and he was then brought down through the enlarged aperture.

Mr. Snyder, who was employed in the new annex to the bank as a handy man in the construction building, is treasurer of the Adams county Republican committee.

Mr. Kohler's play has been presented several times, once at a private showing and again as part of the one-act play contest when Gettysburg high school and Gettysburg academy competed for the silver cup awarded by the First National bank.

Preceding the presentations of the plays the members of the club will hold their annual banquet and election of officers at the Hoffman hotel at 6 o'clock.

4 ARRESTED IN CAR THEFT

Machine Believed Stolen in North Carolina Recovered Near Here.

A touring car, believed by the authorities to have been stolen in North Carolina, although it bore Pennsylvania license plates, was recovered by state highway motor patrolmen on the Lincoln Highway, near Belmont school, west of here, Tuesday afternoon, and the four occupants taken into custody.

The machine was traveling east on the highway, and when the driver saw the officers ahead of him, he is alleged by the patrolmen to have backed down a small hill out of sight of the officers, and substituted Pennsylvania licenses for the lone North Carolina plate which was found under the rear seat by the authorities.

The driver of the car, who said his name was S. L. Sumner, 30, and that he lived at Yorktown, this state, was accompanied by Thomas Bowden, 21, of Wilmington, North Carolina, and Charles Fitch, 25, and Eugene Frazier, 24, both of Warren, Ohio, who said Sumner had picked them up on the Lincoln Highway, near Greensburg.

The Pennsylvania license tags on the machine were registered under the name of J. S. Geiger, of Apollo, patrolman said, adding that they evidently had been stolen.

Local authorities communicated with Warren officials concerning Fitch and Frazier, and were informed that the two men had minor police records in the Ohio city, but were not wanted there. Patrolmen indicated that they would be released today.

Sumner and Bowden will be held here until the identity of the owner of the machine is learned, when the pair will be turned over to federal authorities for violating the national automobile theft act.

The quartet, who were apprehended by Corporal T. N. Boate and Patrolman J. C. Bergbauer, of the local sub-station of highway motor patrolmen, were lodged in the Adams county jail.

KEEP LUXURIES ON LEASH SAYS HEALTH EXPERT

Sacrifice Health To Enjoy Artificial Pleasures, Appel Declares.

Harrisburg, May 23.—(AP)—Keep luxuries on a leash, don't let them run away with you, your happiness and your health, warned Dr. Theodore B. Appel, secretary of health, recently in commenting on the frequency with which we are blinded by the artificialities of living that have sprung up in response to the full purse.

According to Doctor Appel, there is no nation in the world where the plane of living has been raised to such a high level for the average citizen as in the United States and many luxuries that were formerly open only to the rich are now the common possession of the masses. While this situation has much to commend it, he said, there are also other things to consider in this connection.

"After all, money or no money, the main factors of health are fresh air, pure water, adequate shelter, rest, exercise and sufficient sunlight. Moreover, it makes no difference as to the size of one's income, the requisites are dictatorial and compel daily recognition if life is to be happy, healthy and long lived," Doctor Appel said.

"Automobiles that supplant legs, servants that reduce exercise to a painful minimum, rich and constantly over-abundant food, shelter and shaded office and rooms, all are indicative of luxurious comfort and means, but they are decidedly not the things that make for health.

"If you are permitting the attractions of America's wonderful prosperity to blur your judgment relative to the art of living then civilization is making a victim of you when in reality you should be its master.

"There is no desire to minimize the comforts and advantages of the present age. Most of them directly augment the natural joy one gets out of life. On the other hand, a too great fondness for the superfluities with an attendant sacrifice of the fundamentals which the body daily requires is supreme foolishness. It is playing a losing game—one that eventually will lead to unhappiness, unhealthiness and briefer life than could otherwise have been.

"Life is more of a business than most men and women are willing to admit. And a fine place to start with his realization is to put soft living where it belongs. Keep luxuries on the leash. Don't let them run away with you, your happiness and your health."

Flower Vandals To Be Stopped By Motor Patrol

Harrisburg, May 23.—Destruction of wild flowers and shrubbery along highways and in forests or wood lots by motorists is to be vigorously discouraged by the highway patrol. Working in conjunction with the department of forests and waters this organization will take an active part in curbing the practice of stripping blossoms and blooms as well as uprooting wild flowers, only to let them wilt in automobiles.

Early in the tourist season patrolmen are on the alert to warn motorists that they may enjoy but must not destroy the flowers and plants which add to the beauty of hill and valley. Motorists with fruit blossoms, or bouquets of flowering dogwood may expect to be stopped and questioned as to the source of their prizes, which often are discarded before reaching home.

The following should not be picked or disturbed: Arbutus, hepatica, lady slipper, showy orchid, trillium, bluebells, yellow dog tooth violet, laurel, rhododendron, flowering dogwood, fringed gentian, ferns.

od contained in the report of the committee on new constitution. The new constitution was offered to the synod five years ago and was approved by previous meetings up to that section dealing with the election of delegates to the general synod, which proved to be an obstacle. The Rev. Dr. A. R. Wentz, chairman of the committee on new constitution, said that Tuesday's action paved the way for final adoption of the new constitution today.

Would Empower Committee According to the Rev. Dr. Wentz, the plan for the election of the twenty general synod delegates, circularized by the Baltimore group, among ministers of the synod before the present sessions, would have placed the selection of the delegates in the hands of a committee instead of leaving it with the synodical body as a whole.

A memorial service for five members of the synod who died since last year's meeting was held Tuesday afternoon with the Rev. Dr. J. T. Huddle, of Washington, chairman of the committee on memorials, in charge. Those memorialized were the Rev. James Willis, Washington; the Rev. S. J. Derr, Hampstead; the Rev. Dr. Ezra K. Bell and the Rev. P. H. Miller, Baltimore, and the Rev. F. H. Weaver, Newry.

M'NARY-HAUGEN BILL IS VETOED

Coolidge Returns Farm Relief Bill Unsigned For Second Time.

Washington, May 23.—(AP)—President Coolidge today vetoed the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill. Thus for the second time in as many years Mr. Coolidge has disapproved a farm plan embodying the equalization fee for surplus crop control.

Whether there will be any farm relief enacted this session now is up to congress. The house and senate have a choice of repassing the bill without the equalization fee in the hope of winning presidential favor or of attempting enactment of the measure as it stands by overriding Mr. Coolidge's veto.

There is much doubt that the latter course would prove successful.

Littlestown Seniors On Annual Journey

The members of the senior class of the Littlestown high school and chaperons, Miss Margaret Stauffer and Prof. L. L. Stavelly, left Tuesday morning for Washington, D. C., where they will spend three days. They were conveyed by motor bus to the capital city, by the Gettysburg-Harrisburg Transportation company. The senior class of the school has been making this trip annually.

Those who comprised the party were: Miss Margaret Stauffer, Prof. L. L. Stavelly, Elmer R. Snyder and the following members of the class: Misses Vivian Brumgard, Kathryn Flickinger, Marcella Stavelly, Evelyn Stoner, Theda Motter, Laura Mathias, Viola Lemmon, Irma Renner, Oneida Collins, Catherine Mehning, Ethel Ohler, Paul Althoff, Ray LeGore, Lewis Bair, Robert Shriver, Harry Badgers, Glenn Shriver, Paul Trostle, George Study and Robert Harner.

LINDY OFFICER IN AIR CONCERN

Will Be In Charge Of Fields, Equipment Of Air-Rail Company.

New York, May 23.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh has entered the field of commercial aviation after a year devoted to promotion of flying to the exclusion of business ventures.

He has joined the recently organized Transcontinental Air Transport. The company plans, among other things, to run a train-airplane passenger service from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast, reducing the time of travel by two days.

Lindbergh will be chairman of the technical committee of the organization.

Announcement of Lindbergh's first entry into commercial aviation was made by C. M. Keys, president of the Transcontinental Air Transport, Inc., at the office of Blair and company, New York bankers.

In Charge Of Equipment

The announcement said: "Colonel Lindbergh has become actively identified with the Transcontinental Air Transport, as chairman of the technical committee.

"All matters concerning choice of equipment, fields, general service, flying routes, safety appliances, etc., will come under the authority of this committee, which will be made up of practical and experienced men."

The announcement was given out on the anniversary of the day on which Lindbergh awoke at the American embassy in Paris to find crowds howling outside for a sight of him; to find he was no longer a $5000-a-year 'flying mail man' but an international idol.

First Business Venture

Lindbergh arrived in Paris the night of May 21 and from the morning of May 22 until the present time he has been entirely public property. He has done nothing, so far as is known, in a business way for himself.

At the time of his return from Paris he refused even to consider such things as motion picture offers from private commercial concerns, explaining he was not yet ready to talk of such things.

More recently it has been regarded as certain that eventually he would enter in some manner, commercial aviation on a large scale.

Details of Lindbergh's contract with the Transcontinental Transport were not made public. It was reported on Wall Street—and Wall Street is interested financially in the company and follows Lindbergh as closely as it does United States Steel—that he has received as a bonus or has bought for cash, a considerable stock interest in the company and also will receive a generous annual salary.

(Continued From Page One) India and a former resident of York county, spoke before the convention last night on the difficulties which face a missionary in the foreign field. In summarizing at the close of his talk, he said that the chief obstacles of mission work are the necessity of mastering the native language, the unappreciativeness of the natives and the lack of sufficient financial facilities.

"When the Christian mission churches in foreign fields become self-supporting, the greatest obstacle to the advancement of the work will have been overcome," he said.

A short address in behalf of the board of ministerial pension relief was given by William H. Menges, of Spring Grove, York county. The board was to have been represented by the Rev. M. H. Valentine, of Gettysburg, who sent word yesterday that it was impossible for him to attend the convention.

The annual report of the executive committee by the Rev. George E. Bowersox, of Shrewsbury, president, was the feature of the morning's session. The remainder of the day was taken up by the transaction of general business and memorial services for the several ministers of the synod who have died since the 1927 convention.

To License Six

Four members of the graduating class of the Gettysburg seminary will be licensed to preach and six recently elected pastors of churches in the synod will be ordained this evening. The ceremonies will be in charge of the Rev. Mr. Bowersox. The ordination sermon will be delivered by the Rev. W. H. Ehrhart, of Jefferson.

The candidates for licensure are J. Frank Fife, H. Reginald Greenholt, Paul Snowden Kelly and Fred R. Seibel, Jr., all of the Gettysburg seminary. The candidates to be ordained are George J. Curran, of Wheaton, Ill.; George I. Melhorn, of Bedford; E. Raymond Baublitz, of Dayton, Ohio; Kenneth S. Ehrhart, of Leechburg; Austin E. Stiles and Willard L. Kroh, of Gettysburg.

The convention will close tomorrow night with a laymen's mass meeting in charge of Alvin R. Nissley, of Lemoyne. An address will be given by John Kramer, of Mansfield, Ohio.

"POWDER MY BACK," starring Irene Rich, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Adele Dayton, famous musical comedy star, playing in "Powder My Back," pays a visit to her married sister, Mabel, in their home town, Boston, Iowa. During her stay, Harry Stark, her niece's beau, and George Robertson, her childhood sweetheart, now a bank president, both fall in love with her. She returns to New York, and Harry follows her. Later George arrives, explaining that Harry decamped with bank funds and that her niece is heart-broken. For the sake of her niece, Adele tells Harry that she does not love him. To convince him, she goes to Atlantic City with George, but Harry follows them.

"Well, I'm not going to tell you now, but suppose you come down about—let me see—Adele looked at her watch. "Come down about thirty, or a little later—perhaps a quarter of nine would be better—and I'll tell you then.... Yes, I promise.... No, I'm not going to tell you now.... No, I have to dress.... All right, then. A quarter to nine. Bye-bye." She hung up the receiver and set the phone on the bedside table.

"Renée," she turned to the maid, "how do I look—now be truthful!" "Well, Madame," Renée frowned, scarcely knowing what to reply,

"Yes—I promise."

I should suggest a little powder—slight touch of rouge—a little—"

"In other words, I look a little ragged, eh?" she laughed.

"Well, of course, Madame knows—"

Renée began.

"Yes, unfortunately I do know, Renée. None of us can keep our mouth and beauty forever." Adele hooked her head. "And that's what I've been trying to do, but I've never even admitted it to myself before, and I don't think I ever shall again. I've convinced myself of many, many things, and the last is over. I've cleared a lot of obscure things from my mind—listen! Wasn't that someone knocking?"

Renée went out, closing the bedroom door behind her and opened the living-room door. Harry stood in, looking somewhat less disseveled than before. In fact he seemed more like himself again.

The tiredness had gone from his eyes; he was freshly shaven, and he felt extraordinarily happy.

"May I see Miss Dayton, please?"

he enquired of Renée, who regarded him rather dubiously, having heard Adele make the appointment

with George over the telephone.

"Madame is busy at present,"

Renée began, "but I will tell her you are here." She went back to the bedroom and announced the caller.

"That's all right, Renée," Adele

assured the maid. "He's not going to stay very long. Is that you,

Harry," she called out.

"Yes," he called back. "Aren't you ready yet?"

"Aren't you early?" Adele responded.

"You said half an hour," Harry insisted. "It's just exactly eight-fifteen now. I tried to stay away as long as you told me,

ear, but it was hard. I hurried right back as soon as I knew that the time was up."

"Yes!" Adele retorted casually.

Well, I thought I said an hour,

but it's all right. Sit down. I have a cigarette, and I'll be out presently."

She was trying to steel herself to do what she had planned, and her task was not easy. Harry's

happy voice, his evident eagerness,

made her shrink from the work before her. It was like having something destroyed that you believed in, and she realized that she was going to wound Harry sorely.

It would be something that he could never forget. But it had to be done, she told herself fiercely,

and she pulled on her stockings and put her feet into the dull brown

slippers and pushed up her flaring

hosiery.

In the next room Harry waited patiently, striding up and down,

and watching the door that led to

City Permits Skyscrapers To Be 24 Stories

Sao Paulo, Brazil.—(AP)—This important commercial city aims to become the "Chicago of South America," not alone in a business way, but also in appearance.

To that end the city fathers have authorized construction of the loftiest skyscrapers on the southern continent.

The new limit placed on business construction here is 24 stories, an increase of two stories over the previous ordinance. In a few years it is thought likely this law may be superseded by one allowing towers of business to rise still higher.

Although Rio de Janeiro has several high office buildings under construction and nearly completed, none of them approach the new Sao Paulo limit. Paulistas are looking forward to the completion of the first 24-story building as the highest south of the Panama Canal and will celebrate the event in a fitting manner.

Central Hotel Stable Burned.—
On Sunday night our citizens were startled twice by that many alarms of fire. The first alarm was sounded at 11 o'clock and was caused evidently by an incendiary having set fire to some inflammable material at the southeast corner of James Weaver's stable adjoining the Central Hotel stable. Fortunately the fire was discovered in its early stage by Miss Bessie Hartlaub, who resides with John Shellman in the Faber house, on West Middle street. A bucket brigade succeeded in getting the fire
under control.

The second fire was of a more serious nature and was discovered in the southwest corner of the Central Hotel stable and an alarm was again sounded.

The fire started among a lot of hay and straw and the flames spread with great rapidity. The stable across the alley, owned by Prof. Aaron Sheely and occupied by J. C. Hoke as a livery, also caught and the roof and north side were considerably damaged. Other buildings in the vicinity were also scorched.

The horses and carriages in both the Central and Mr. Hoke's stable were saved, not however without great difficulty. In rescuing the horses, William B. Long was severely burned and J. C. Hoke suffered injuries by being kicked by one of the horses while endeavoring to force them from the stable.
Two of the animals owned by Mr.
Hoke were almost suffocated by the smoke.

Too much praise cannot be given our firemen. They did nobly and it was only through their faithful efforts that more buildings were not destroyed.

The loss sustained by Capt. J. T.
Long, proprietor of the Central Hotel, will amount to about $700. Beside the stable, a lot of feed, one sleigh, etc., were burned, while Prof. Aaron Sheely's loss will amount to $25.

Mr. Long's stable was insured for $300.

AN OLD FISHERMAN DROPS IN
He dropped into my office with a twinkle in his eye
And a smile of satisfaction which nobody could deny,
But I wondered as I saw him what he'd come to talk about,
When he said: "I'm here to tell you that it's time to go for trout."

Oh, this life of mine is busy—all
that's left me is the dream,
And the voice of this old-timer had
the ripple of a stream,
As he talked of spruce and hemlock and his cabin by the brook.
Spring had set his spirit dancing—
I could tell it by his look.

"There are some who lose their
tempers when a big one gets away,
But not I," said he, "I chuckle, for I've had a happy day,
And I like the fish to best me in the battle if he can
And I like to fight him fairly just
to prove that I'm a man."

Though I had no time for leisure, I forgot my anxious care,
I was swept away from duty by
that old man in the chair.
As a boy I sat and listened to the yarns he had to spin,
Which is usually what happens
when a fisherman drops in.

Returns

(By Pacific & Atlantic)
William Nelson Cromwell, noted corporation and international lawyer, is shown above as he appeared on his return to New York other day after European vacation.

"The Bubbling Brook goes singing
Down to the ocean deep.
I think it knows 'twill get there
Before 'tis time to sleep.

The little bird goes flying
Far from its leafy nest,
But when the sun is setting
It comes back home to rest.

And little romping children
At night climb up the stairs
To creep in bed and fold their hands
And softly say their prayers."

murmured the musical alarm clock that dear Uncle Lucky had bought at the Three-in-One Cent Store.
Yes, all through the night this wonderful clock softly crooned this lullaby to the two little rabbits.
And when morning broke, it sang in a louder key, Oh, yes, quite cheerily:

"Wake up! Get up! The morn is here,
The sun is shining bright and clear!"

"Did you have a dream about bubbling brooks and little birds and sleepy children?" asked the little rabbit, all of a sudden, as he pulled on his khaki trousers.

"Believe I did," answered dear
Uncle Lucky, thrusting his diamond horseshoe pin in his pink necktie and looking enquiringly at the Musical Alarm Clock, which,
not strange to say, remained perfectly quiet. "Well, now let's hop down to breakfast. Little Miss Mousie most likely has the Carrot Cakes already baked." As soon as the meal was over, out to the barn hopped the two little bunnies to get the Luckymobile, which the Old Red Rooster had just finished washing.

"Good morning, Shanty!" cried
the old gentleman rabbit. Uncle Lucky often called him "Shanty"
because it was short for Chante-cleer, the French name of a famous rooster, you know.

"The same to you," answered the busy old fowl, brushing the cushions with his feather duster tail. Then into the car hopped the two little bunnies, and waving goodby to little Miss Mousie in the kitchen doorway, away they sped down Lettuce avenue towards Rabbitville. By and by, after a mile and maybe three, they saw their friend, the Old Brown Horse, in a nice, green pasture, where, after a meal of tender grass, he would rest

WRECKED CAR TO MARK CROSSING

Lynnfield, Mass.—(AP)—The burned and shattered ruins of an automobile in which four persons were killed at a railroad crossing here may stand as a monument of warning to all who pass the scene.
Residents of the neighborhood
who use the crossing have sought permission to take what is left of the car and have it placed on the embankment at the approach to the crossing to instill caution in those who travel over the tracks.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

TOO GROWN UP

I DO NOT understand why people have to grow up! Isn't life something that unfolds, like this beautiful spring? It unfolded in its own beautiful way last spring, too. Springs are not old. They are ever new—fresh, with delicate odors, pungent smells, exquisite colorings, and creeping into an air saturated with bird songs that we heard only just a few months before.

As a boy I wondered why people had to grow old—I wonder yet.

My father seemed old to me when he told me that he was 40. I wondered why. My mother was only in the fifties when she died.
But I knew that she wasn't old. She never could have been, because she lived and loved in so many that were always perennially and eternally young.

The world may grow old. That doesn't matter. But people shouldn't. We carry every trifling experience with us. The sum of them makes us rich in thought, more observant, keener in our analysis of the strange things that enter into our development each day.

Youth is an experience. It is something rollicking, free, full blooded, blind, reckless—and brave. And the passion of youth is like a sunset—gorgeous, exquisite, and great in color. How all age needs this mixture! How drab would the accumulated years be without this natural background.

He or she who lacks this gift of the years is too grown up.
There is an old sea Captain on the Vermont, who is familiar and beloved by all who have ever sailed on that boat which goes between Plattsburg and Monticau Landing on Lake Champlain. He was recently 98 years old and has completed his 84th season!

The name of this remarkable man is Captain Rockwell, and he remarked the other day: "If I feel as spry as I do today, I will reach the first century mark and then plan to take life a bit easy the next hundred years!"

It's largely a matter of viewpoint, this growing up business anyway. So that if each of us keeps quite a deal of youth tucked up our sleeve, who shall say that we are too grown up?

WHEN Miller announced America's First Scientifically Correct Ballon Tire—the world of tires took notice—and bought them, by hundreds of thousands. This was a "scoop" in the tire industry. Says Stewart's New Prescription Did His Stomach and Entire System a World of Good.

"Since taking Stewart's New Prescription I can eat heartily of liver and kidneys. This seemed plausible and upon reading of Stewart's New Prescription in the newspapers I resolved to ask the Stewart's expert about his tonic. And I certainly am glad that I did consult him for I am so pleased with the benefits Stewart's New Prescription brought me that I am anxious to tell others how it helped me and I hope those who read this will decide to give this new remedy a trial."

The rich phosphates Stewart's New Prescription contains goes right to the starved tissues, building them up and strengthening them so that you once more enjoy the happiness of perfect health.

The Stewart's man is now at Murphy's Cut Rate Store where he is daily explaining the merits of Stewart's New Prescription. Stop in and see him today.—adv.
